

Games & Toys

Opening on Saturday, December 14 2019, 12.00
Duration of the exhibition: 14 – 31 December 2019

“The creation of something new is not succeeded by comprehension but by the game’s instinct”
Carl Jung

“In the long history of the human civilization, if art, constitutes a cognitive system of understanding reality, the game, this complex and multiform phenomenon, is indeed an instinctive, entertaining procedure. Through this procedure, the human individual –mostly during his childhood- learns to evolve his thought, to acquire comprehension and sense of his body, to come to know how to cope with all difficulties, to sharpen his judgement, to explore the world and to interact with his environment. The game renders the child capable of comprehending the natural, social and spiritual world and to communicate it.

The connection between game and art and its significance, is fundamental and continuous. The exhibition points out the creative, imaginary, transformative and conceptual games of the artists.

Game as well as art is freedom, passion and creation. The exhibition is an experience that invites the viewer to playful spontaneous associations and interpretations. Though the multileveled and multidimensional relation of art and game, the exhibition offers itself symbolically as a gift for recreation, awakening of the memory, activation of the imagination and rediscovery of the lost magic of our world”.
